Talking Storybook: Zoya's Eid

A Sikhora Kids storybook. Read it together, then answer the questions at the end.

Zoya's family was waiting for Eid ul-Fitr. It comes at the end of Ramzan, a month when many grown-ups fast from sunrise to sunset.

In the evening, everyone looked up at the sky. "There is the new moon!" said Abbu. "Eid is tomorrow!"

In the morning, Zoya wore new clothes. After the Eid prayers, everyone hugged their friends and said, "Eid Mubarak!"

Ammi had made sheer khurma, a sweet dish of milk and thin vermicelli. Zoya carried bowls of it to the neighbours.

Nani gave Zoya Eidi, a small gift for children. Zoya remembered that Eid is also a time to share with people who need help.

That evening the house was full of friends, food and laughter. "Eid Mubarak!" everyone said again and again.
